MUST-HAVE TRACKS

"H-H-Highschool" and "Seems So Elementary"

Montreal's high-school-sweetheart duo plays electro-pop filled with sweet vocals and fuzzy guitars that melt your heart and get you moving at the same time.

Playing a Pop Montreal showcase with Crystal Castles and Duchess Says. "They're our two favourites, and the show was epic."

"We've always had a thing for bands that make people sweaty. We want our music to have the same effect."

Their debut album, Selector, released in October

"Hot Video" and an online-only remix of "Floodlights" on MySpace

This four-piece new-wave electro-pop band from Toronto busts out the super-synths and joyous melodies to create club rockers that sound good off the dance floor too.

"We were chilling in a convertible in sunny Beverly Hills when we said, 'After all we've been through, who woulda thought it would come to this?'"

"We want to make people absolutely lose their minds when they're on the dance floor."

Their first album, out this spring, and new remixes they post on MySpace

"I Get Money (Grandtheft Remix)," "Mikey Rocks (Grandtheft Remix)" and "Ring of Fire (Grandtheft Remix)"

Superstar spinners Grandtheft and D.R. one paired up to form Team Canada DJs, bringing a stream of remixes and their trademark mash-up talents to parties all over North America.

"Touring with MIA and producing the song 'Mmm Papi' for Britney Spears' new album, Circus!"

"It's sexy! We like seeing how our music affects people in a positive and fun way!"

Their debut album, Karmageddon, due out in April

"Burn Down the Disco," "Internet Pornstar" and "Life We Live"

This "crunked-out, head-bangin' disco" Torontonian trio has gained a big following, sans even one album. Let's Go to War's rapping contrasts nicely with tongue-in-cheek lyrics and old-school, Nintendo-like bleeps.

"Having Nilesh Patel master our record, holding our gold-foiled vinyl and touring with our best friends."

"It's super-loud, dark and haunting—like a Tina Turner futuristic disco dream."

Their long-awaited self-titled debut album, released in October

"You're My Heart," "Haunted Magic" and "What You Do (Will Come Back to You)" □

Refugees from scenester faves Controller Controller and No Dynamics joined forces to form Toronto dance-rock band Lioness.
